PHOENIX – The Heard Museum is excited to announce it will host the 66th annual Heard Museum Guild Indian Fair & Market on March 2 and 3. The event, recognized as one of the largest American Indian art markets in the world and the largest in Arizona, provides the opportunity to meet and purchase art directly from multiple generations of artists working in all forms of the visual arts. All proceeds from ticket sales support the Heard Museum’s mission of advancing American Indian art.

"Since the Heard Guild began the Indian Fair and Market 65 years ago, the fair has connected over 15,000 yearly visitors with 600 American Indian artists," said David M. Roche, Dickey Family Director and Heard Museum CEO. "Art lovers from around the world and local community members cross paths here to experience the talent that comes through our doors."

Fair and market artists, both emerging and established, represent more than 100 American Indian and Alaska Native Tribes, and Canadian First Nations. They will show and sell artwork that includes jewelry, baskets, beadwork, quillwork, lapidary, paintings, drawings, photography, graphics, personal attire, pottery, pueblo carvings, sculpture, weaving and textiles, and other diverse artistic media.

The museum is also excited to present a lineup of artists to the Museum Shop during the event, including: Victoria Adams, Tim Blueflint, Jackie Larson Bread, Karen Clarkson, Ivan Howard, Roxanne Swentzell, and Ray Tracey. Each artist brings a unique perspective, showcasing their talent across various mediums. "The Indian Fair and Market has built a wonderful platform for Indigenous artists to showcase their work and skill over the past 66 years," said John Miller, Heard Museum Guild President.

The market will be held on Saturday, March 2 from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. and on Sunday, March 3 from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Museum members enjoy early admission at 8:30 a.m. on Saturday. The Best of Show Reception and Youth Art Show & Sale preview is held Friday, March 1, from 5:30 p.m. to 8:00 p.m.

Tickets are required for entry to the weekend events and include admission to the Heard Museum. All proceeds from ticket sales support the Heard Museum’s mission to advance American Indian art.
